The Louie Huey and Chloe Robertson Mysteries: The Complete Series Kim A. Smith

This series of books examines some of the most profound issues brought about by technological advances that humankind will face in the near future. Pulitzer Prize-winning reporters Louie Huey and Chloe Robertson investigate the rise of transhumans, mind control, time travel, and life after death. While these novels are fiction, scientists and engineers are now developing these technologies in private, university, and government labs around the world, often in secrecy. These anonymous men and women are radically transforming our lives without our awareness. Whether we will use these technologies for good or evil is yet to be determined. Will we control them? Or will they control us? Unless we act now, future generations will be burdened with finding the answer.
