CAN BE READ AS A STANDALONE

Petey Farson was not considered the sharpest knife in the drawer among his Navy SEAL squadron; in fact, he'd shot himself twice during his first real fire fight. He certainly wasn't seen as a star in the group. While in a military hospital, Petey meets his physician, Dr. Mallory Bennett, and instantly feels himself attracted to her. Unfortunately, he knows he's not going to attract her with his smarts – he can barely walk from a bullet wound to his Achilles tendon.

Dr. Bennett sees behind his lack of intelligence, but fears intimacy with another man destined to leave her. She moved to the hospital with an ex-boyfriend who abandoned her and felt she couldn't bring herself to love again. Yet, he quickly begins to break down her walls with his mesmerizing brown eyes and kind smile. The longer she's with him, the more her desire grows – she wants to feel him closer, but doesn't know how to let him in.

Around them as they start to passionately desire each other more and more, the hospital begins to take a dark turn. Petey receives intelligence that an enemy from his past mission is out to kill him – and has already killed other patients by mistake. Though Petey fears for his life, his longing for Mallory only grows. He dreams of kissing every soft patch of skin on her body and of making her moan with pleasure. However, he can't make love to her if he's dead.

Can Dr. Bennett give in and fall in love? Will Petey be able to survive through his hospital stay? Read and experience their romantic and dangerous journey.
